

How a sharp and fast escalation of recession is created by design.

We need to ask questions about the commodity of money being hijacked on a global scale.

"BEN S. BERNANKE, the Federal Reserve chairman, told Congress last week that fighting off a possible recession in the United States was Job 1 for his crew. But a consumer-led recession has already begun, according to a new index that reflects how much money Americans can actually spend right now. " (March 2, 2008 – The New York Times)

I have tried to be as concise as possible.

Consider what your first reaction is when you read the above statement from the Federal Reserve chairman and consider what you decide to do once you read about the news of a coming recession in the newspaper.

You will think of saving more and spending less as a safeguard for a grim economic future and this is called a consumer-led increase of impediment which is actually being encouraged by the media and the international bankers so they can control the recession events.

Thanks to these newspaper articles and especially even more each time the Federal Reserve, the Bank of England and the European Central Bank makes statements like the one above this crisis may come sooner than expected. That's when the International Bankers are increasing their powers and wealth on a global scale. Their control of nations accumulate and another stack of bank companies are taken over directly or by control. They want to speed up the effect of the coming of this recession so they can control this event. The International Bankers rest on experience of centuries and know very well what they are doing using the upper echelons of the worldwide mainstream media of which its influence is for an important part under their control.

With each loan of last resort money is being created out of thin air. This is commonly known as injection of money. This money is FREE to any Central Bank such as the Federal Reserve, Bank of England and the European Central Bank. They make this money at NO EFFORT in their BACK YARD so to speak while asking a return of effort (interest) from the borrowing major banks and countries via interest and the income tax. Here, slavery comes into play. We are the slaves of the Central Banks who print money out of nothing while asking surplus for the use of that money; this is a fundamental given. The commodity of money has been hijacked on a global scale while money was originally intended as a means of delay of exchange of goods and services between the common people but alas, also as a means of power on nations and kingdoms and subjecting the common people as serfs (slaves) in past centuries. We argue that the latter is still the case, however the condition is now consented through the manipulation of perception on the commodity of money.

Let me take you back in time a little bit.

In medieval Europe under the Feudal system the common people were slave laborers also known as serfs under the ruling kings, their tax was under the form of free labor and collection of the maximum harvests by the villeins (<http://capweb.capital.k12.de.us/pub/dhs/dbeck/awebfeudal1.htm>.)

The control of money in later medieval Europe was shared among several families and goldsmiths and silversmiths with gold and silvercoins as means of direct exchange and certificates that backed the gold and silver which was trusted to the banks in their vaults.

The control of the money commodity was coming into the hands of fewer and fewer people whereby the certified backing of the gold and the real amount of gold in the bank vaults was becoming corrupted.

As centuries were passing smart, savvy and schrewd individuals had more and more a greedy and selfish organized power wielding plan with the commodity of money. A power that would cross boundaries and bypass nations. There came the creation in 1694 of the Bank of England and other Central Banks in each European country.

Soon America, the new world that made its own currency independent of Europe, would fall back into the hands of the European International Bankers and later in 1913 the creation of the Federal Reserve System came into place by false play and manipulation of the American political arena around that time. This is important to know to understand current world affairs. Those that created the Central Banks are the same who created the European Union, The United Nations, IMF and the World Bank. They belong to the same league of persons, known as the internationalists, that saw the nationstate as an obstruction in their quest for wealth and control on a continental and global scale.

In this UK newspaper article of The Independent the causes of the coming (or not coming) recession is well explained for the non-economist: <http://www.independent.co.uk/news/business/analysis-and-features/anatomy-of-a-global-credit-crisis-462501.html> .

Remember, in strict view we are no less slaves than the medieval serfs, the only difference is that the majority is so hypnotized by the illusion of wealth and temporary happiness (media glamour & glitter, sensation based media entertainment, technology gadgets), that they don't even notice that the rights of private property in the family bloodline are been taken away gradually by generation forcing each new generation going back into the debt trap and private properties harder to get by. The IMF and World Bank are working hard to implement the same strategies through state loans shrewdly packaged as non-governmental aid loans in developing countries worldwide where private properties are still inherited solely by title of family ownership and community. Under the shackle of increasing taxes and cost of modern living these people will be forced to release and sell their properties if their properties are not going to be seized already by that time. This won't happen in a few years. The International Bankers plan well ahead and have their draws well filled since 1913 with the help of social scientists and science on human behavior (4).

Good luck and Peace!

(1) ==> Is there already a global or world currency? Does the World Bank already provide for this?

See <http://classes.design.ucla.edu/Fall04/150A/DMA150ASyllabus.pdf> where the concept of a global currency is being spoonfed into the minds of students as an innocent graphics design project. This is no attack to the UCLA university but only to show that the method applied here falls completely in line with the manufacturing of consent (4) in which people are being led to believe that a certain idea coming from others is a good thing for themselves to express status or class or a good thing within the social concept and so made to think it to be in harmony with their own idea about a future for themselves and future generations. The students are very enthusiastic about the idea as you can see the multitude of designs for World Currency

Notes.

<http://classes.design.ucla.edu/Fall04/150A/?checkout=kevin/week1/Formation%20of%20European%20Union.txt> .

We may, looking back into past methods of manufacturing consent, with enough proof of fact that a World Currency is part of the International Bankers' future plans, whether cash or non-cash (by card or RFID). It's in the draws (http://www.trilateral.org/library/world_monetary_system_1973.pdf). They only need to make people on a continental scale like the idea. They succeeded already with the change to the Euro for the European countries.

(2) ==> Is there a connection between the United Nations and world peace?

The United Nations (including the United States) rose out of the League of Nations (excluding the United States). The League of Nations rose out of the ruins of the first world war. There has been NO PEACE in the world still since after creation of the United Nations after the second world war and up to today, instead wars against the third worlds started right after. Do the maths. The European Union and the UN were not made for peace but purely and solely for the benefit of the world corporate community and the ideology of a one world government in which regional governments have to synchronize to global laws under false pretexts. The rate of mental depressions increases with the introductions of western modern lifestyles & rat races worldwide, and this is just one indicator out of many.

(There are enough signals that global warming is NOT man made. Other planets and moons of these planets like Mars also have decreasing ice caps.)

(3) ==> A clean explanation about the origins of the credit-crisis and so called coming recession?

Economic theories about monetary inflations are there to make the the economy look as if having an unpredictable and stochastic behavior. Nothing is less true. The International Bankers that devised the Central Banks know very well why they have created Central Banks and like no other they understand the money system mechanics and behavior of the common people in their drive for materialism and unnecessary needs (luxury) (4). Central Banks were created as they say to control the economy for our benefit. These are lies. The rate of economic crises have unchanged before AND after Central Banks came into existence. As I stated above, the reason for the existence of Central Banks is the greed for control and centralization of power in fewer and fewer hands as decennia pass by. With each economic crises the sovereign powers of nation states erode to be replaced by international governance by international law, and this is the intended goal which is in line with the future concepts promoted by individuals who's names are continuous within the different foundations and institutions that maintain high influence worldwide throughout the last 50 years.

Quote below shows how 'theories' are presented to smokescreen the knowledgeability and savvy foresight of the Central Bank creators which is only to serve their purpose:

Inflation - Causes of inflation

There are different schools of thought as to what causes inflation. The two most prevalent theories are the neo-classical theory that inflation is driven by increases in the money supply, often used to finance government spending and the neo-Keynesian view that inflation is the result of diminishing returns of productivity. (4) ==> ...with the help of social scientists and science in human behavior.

Search "Century of Self" on <http://video.google.com> to view the video to learn about social science and how it has been exercised on the public masses for the last 100 years to create an actually alienating consumer mentality. It's a mainstream documentary done by the BBC in 4 Chapters each approximantely being 45 minutes. You will be surprised how much you are being steered. Mental depressions are a modern time decease they say. The causes are to be found at the social science techniques exercised on an unaware public.

(5)=> Can the above claims be verified using main stream media sources?

Yes, you can. If you align and scrutinize all financial news articles and press releases of the last +100 years, which has been done by several writers, there's a consistency of power usurption on a federal level if we look at the United States policies. It is unconstitutional because the constitution was set to limit government powers.

Bernanke defended the move as necessary to avert a meltdown in the entire financial system. "The damage caused by a default by Bear Stearns could have been severe and extremely difficult to contain," he said. The Fed's unprecedented involvement was meant as a one-time event. "It has never happened before, and I hope it never happens again," he told lawmakers.

Although the taxpayers are on the hook for the $29 billion, Bernanke believed they wouldn't suffer any losses. "I feel reasonably confident that we will be able to recover all of the principle and indeed some interest, and there is some chance of even upside beyond that."

To also ease the credit crisis, the Fed — in the broadest use of its lending authority since the 1930s — agreed to temporarily let big investment firms obtain emergency financing.

Bernanke said the Fed "never lost a penny" in the past from various lending maneuvers.

The above is quoted from the YAHOO! news article to be found at http://news.yahoo.com/s/ap/20080402/ap_on_bi_ge/bernanke_congress

Once one understands the true history of the Federal Reserve and its involvement in the economy it is once again shown in mainstream media how the Federal Reserve works by deceit and secrecy, puffing smoke of lies into the minds of the reading public. Bernanke's closing words "never lost a penny" may well be viewed as a sarcastic remark by which an already duped public is being manipulated once again.

In this age of empire how do we arrive at the truth and still retain our sanity.

The usual criticism made about objectivity is that it doesn't exist.

We're not just passive receptors sponging up images and information.

Perception is, you know, involved selecting omitting organizing data into comprehensive forms.

In other words an act of perceiving something is itself an act of editing which introduces certain kinds of distortions.

There's that classical Walter Lippman statement that he made 80 years ago: "We don't see things and then define them but we define them first and then see them."

But the mental selectives we use to organize our perceptions are not mostly of our own creation.

Much of our personal perception is really not all that personal, rather it's shaped by a variety of things outside of ourselves.

Such as the dominant ideology, conventional social values, one's position in the social structure, the available flow of information and disinformation, the potential benefits and losses that are attached to such perceptions.

It's up in Sinclair's famous quotation where he said: "It's very difficult to get a man to understand something when his salary depends on his not understanding it."

So Alvin Golub, he argued that our readiness to accept or decline or reject some view rests less on the evidents and the argument that is presented for that particular view and more on how it fits our background assumptions, that is the climate of opinion.

The notions that don't fit our background assumptions are seen as too far out and lacking in credibility.

Today, an analogous concept might be the dominant paradigm.

A paradigm is the philosophical or a theoretical framework within which imperial hypotheses are drawn and scientifically theories developed - that's what we usually mean by paradigm.

It's developed a more popular use - it means the - today I think - I mean - the dominant paradigm means the mainstream ideology - you see bumper stickers that say 'subvert the dominant paradigm'.

And the dominant paradigm is based on unanimity of bias.

And that unanimity of bias is what passes for objectivity in mainstream discourse.
